APPLICANT LAW EXAM

This open-book law (or jurisprudence) exam is made up of a random assortment of 20 questions concerning the Board's Act and rules. If you don't know the answer to a question, you are welcome to review the rules and the Act while you are taking the exam. You must get 15 of the 20 questions right to pass.

You may take the law exam at any time during the application process. There is no additional fee to take the exam, and you may take it more than once if you do not pass it on the first try. Your passing score will be automatically reported to the Board via email and will be included with your application materials.

What to Expect During and After the Exam

-        You can stop the exam and restart from the beginning with no penalty, but you cannot go backwards to a question that has disappeared from the screen. If you leave the exam for an extended period of time, your computer may "time out" and you will have to start the exam from the beginning.
-        After you complete the exam, you will be told which questions you missed (if any), and the correct answers for those questions.
